

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Full Sail student Carlos Stanfield publishes a collection of supernatural short stories: Fledgling Fantasies through Smashwords.com.

Now Available for Review

Denver, Colorado, United States of America - December 14, 2019 – Carlos Stanfield, a fledgling writer, is publishing his first collection of short stories: Fledgling Fantasies. This ebook collection of odd and eclectic tales involving aliens, monsters, and beguiling beasts will be available in a “pay what you want”-model through Smashwords in all major ebook formats.

In “Housewarming,” a young man named Michael receives a housewarming gift from his globe-trotting parents: a mysterious creature that he’s never seen before. He must learn to deal with this odd new arrival.

The second story, “Don’t Tap The Glass” is the tale of Ron and Karren who find themselves in the custody of unknown captors. Together they discuss if there is any way out and whether they should take it.

“Big Bad” follows Frank as he starts hearing bumps in the night. He tries to arm himself against the unknown entity, unsure if he will be able to survive till morning.

The collection ends with “Closing Time,” a coming of age story about Rachel as she tries to both prove herself to her uncle, Francis, and evade a creature that is attempting to eat them both. She mounts a desperate escape to save both of their lives.

Mr. Stanfield is earning a Bachelor of the Fine Arts in Creative Writing with Full Sail University, a learning institution based around media. Fledgling Fantasies is being published through Smashwords.com, the world's largest publisher of indie eBooks. They connect authors with the largest ebook retailers and provide publishing as well as formatting in a wide variety of digital formats.

Contact:

Carlos Stanfield

cistanfield@student.fullsail.edu

1967 South Josephine Street, Apartment 103

Denver,

Colorado,

United States of America

Cell: (719)-639-0665
